Lab Use Only – Review of Request

- Are requirements defined, documented and understood?
- Does the lab have the capability and resources to meet the requirements?
- Was the appropriate method selected and is it capable of meeting the clients' requirements?

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

- 1). Testing charges are estimated on current pricing and time to complete tests. For training and / or observed testing, the minimum hourly fee is $150.
- 2). It is not recommended to base decisions on the result of a single test. The average of 3 to 5 tests made on specimens from different areas of the same sample provides a greater confidence in the results. Surface imperfections may influence test results. Be certain to select material that is free of creases, dents and other surface defects.
- 3). Specimens should be received in "ready-to-test" condition as noted above. A specimen preparation charge will apply to any sample that requires additional preparation.
- 4). Specimens must be plainly identified (e.g. identifier; side to be tested; machine direction; etc.).
- 5). Specimens that consist of a rough surface (e.g. non-skid) may incur an additional charge to cover the cost of Genuine Taber wheels.
- 6). Protect specimens during transportation by carefully packing each specimen so it will not be compromised. For flat materials, be certain the specimen surface is not able to 'rub' against another surface during transportation.
- 7). If unable to specify details of instrument set-up, submit sufficient information regarding service requirements of the material to enable our laboratory to determine the most satisfactory test set-up. In such instances, extra sample material must be furnished.
- 8). Data supplied regarding a material's composition, treatment and use will be considered proprietary information and regarded as confidential.
- 9). SDS must be supplied for approval prior to submitting sample material. Materials that are hazardous or cannot be disposed of through normal means may be rejected.
